Doing Business with Vietnam: Business and Investment Opportunities

Featuring Hanh Tran
Deputy Consul General
Consulate General of Vietnam in San Francisco

Since the U.S.-Vietnam Bilateral Trade Agreement took effect in December 2001, U.S. exports to Vietnam have increased by almost 700 percent. According to the U.S. Commercial Service in Vietnam, "The Vietnam market represents the next great opportunity for all types of American companies."

A delegation from the Vietnamese Consulate General in San Francisco, headed by Deputy Consul General Hanh Tran, will discuss opportunities for the export and import of products and services between Hawaii and Vietnam, as well as investment opportunities.

Ms. Hanh Tran is the Deputy Consul General of the Consulate General of Vietnam in San Francisco and mainly responsible for consular issues. She helps the Consul General to coordinate exchanges of delegations to strengthen investment, commercial, educational and cultural ties between Vietnam and the U.S. Western states.
